

Sargeant Sofa

An older cousin to our Katzsic Sofa, the Sargeant Sofa shares the same elegantly tapering legs and it too is tight-upholstered to show off its architectural form. Its frame, however, is raised, echoing a nineteenth-century campaign sofa Max acquired, to create a wonderfully enclosed space that feels both private and inviting.

The beech frame is made with mortice and tenon joints with a sprung seat and feather cushion. The tapered legs, painted to a choice of colours, are finished with flush square cup casters with leather wheels.

Requires 3m of fabric for the outside back and arms, and 6m of fabric for the contrasting inside back, arms and seat cushion (based on plain, standard width).
