

Seymour Window Seat

Whether in a window, at the end of a bed, or primed as the perfect resting spot in an entrance hall or walkway, the Seymour Window Seat is a versatile piece that's made even more so by virtue of the option to have it with or without a back. Characterised by elegantly scrolling arms, its simple, shaped knees are inspired by mid-eighteenth century adaptations of Chinese furniture and echo forms introduced at Ham House.

The frame in solid beech, the legs in polished American walnut, with a feather seat cushion.

Requires 3.5m of fabric if backless, 4.5m if with back (based on plain, standard width fabric).
