

19th-Century French Confit Pots

A vast collection of nineteenth-century French confit pots. The part-glazed earthenware pots display a spectrum of yellow ochre and green colouring. Originating from the South of France, confit pots were originally used to preserve food – particularly duck.

Sold in sets of three (one large, one medium and one small), as per photographs.

The set of three medium pots is £500.

The set of three small pots is £420.

Aproximate heights: 31cm / 22cm / 20cm

Aproximate diameters: 26cm / 19cm / 17cm

REF: aceramic221

£580.00