George III Mahogany Linen Press

A late 18th century mahogany linen press with Greek key moulding over a fluted frieze with carved corners and central rosette. The panelled doors enclosing the upper interior fitted with a brass hanging rail, above two short drawers and one long drawer, each with gilt brass handles, standing on shaped bracket feet.

This same linen press model can be seen in Paxton House, Berwick-upon-Tweed, Scotland, and was featured in 'The Paxton Style' by David Jones, ed. Fiona Salvesen Murrell, 2018.
